

All about STC in Rochester!

Founded in 1958, the Rochester Chapter of the Society for Technical Communication is based in Upstate New York. Although most of our members live and work in the metropolitan Rochester area, the membership is geographically diverse, with members living in surrounding counties, other parts of the U.S., and Canada.

The Rochester chapter of serves the needs of its members by:

- ◆ Promoting professionalism and the exchange of information among its members
- ◆ Providing educational opportunities for both members and non-members
- ◆ Educating the community on the value of technical communication

Our membership includes writers, editors, graphic designers, business owners, documentation managers, project leaders, educators, instructional developers, and students. With several thousand members worldwide, STC is the largest professional organization devoted to the advancement of the theory and practice of technical communication.

Rochester Chapter members provide a wide range of technical communication services in a variety of industries, such as computer hardware and software, photographic imaging, medicine and health care, telecommunications, community service, and education.

Each spring, the Rochester Chapter hosts Spectrum, a premier technical communication conference, drawing participants from around the U.S. and Canada. The 61st annual chapter conference is scheduled for March, 2020. Visit <http://stc-rochester.org/spectrum-conference/> for more information.

The Rochester Chapter is a dedicated and innovative community. STC has recognized our chapter as a Platinum Community every year since 2015. In 2013, 2015, and 2019, our chapter was named the STC Community of the Year. The Rochester Chapter received Pacesetter Awards in 2012, 2015, 2017, 2018, and 2019.
